Teen Dating Violence Prevention Program

Dating Violence in America

One in three adolescents in the U.S. is a victim of physical, sexual, emotional or verbal abuse from a dating partner, a figure that far exceeds rates of other types of youth violence (The National Council on Crime and Delinquency Focus, 2008). Adults who use violence with their dating partners often begin doing so during adolescence, with the first episode typically occurring by age fifteen (Journal of Family Issues).

Program Description

Safe Dates is the only evidence-based curriculum that prevents dating abuse: a factor often linked to alcohol and other drug use. Highly engaging and interactive, this program helps 7th - 12th grade teens recognize the difference between caring, supportive relationships and controlling, manipulative, or abusive dating relationships. The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration designated Safe Dates as a Model Program, and in 2006, Safe Dates received high ratings from the National Registry of Evidence-based Programs and Practices.

Presentation Objectives

- Identify skills that develop healthy dating relationships, including positive communication, anger management, and conflict resolution
- Recognize what constitutes healthy, unhealthy, and abusive dating relationships
- Describe the relationship cycle
- Identify strategies and resources to help individuals in abusive dating relationships

Included in the Safe Dates Program

- Workshop series
- Parent materials
- Resource handouts for students, staff, and parents
- Optional play about dating abuse
- STOP! Violence staff member to facilitate sessions
